The University of Maryland Eastern Shore has “Much Ado About Something” this fall

The “something” involves not only the traditional academic pursuits of the university, but an array of events highlighting the talents of our students and faculty in the fine, performing and culinary arts.

The late Jacob Bronowski, biologist, mathematician, historian of science, theatre author, poet and inventor, imparted these words: “Man is unique not because he does science, and he is unique not because he does art, but because science and art equally are expressions of his marvelous plasticity of mind.”

Come to UMES to experience the creativity of the talented minds that add to the culture of our campus and the surrounding community.

The Mosely Gallery in the Thomas/Briggs Arts and Technology Center serves as the showplace for student and faculty exhibits of fine art in a variety of mediums throughout the semester. Don’t miss the “Meet the Artist” reception of the “Sequential Art (Comic) Show,” one of the newest and fastest growing concentrations in the art department, featuring panel discussions and other activities.

If it’s instrumental music that speaks to you, soothe your senses with the sounds of the UMES Jazz Ensemble, Jazz Combo or Wind Ensemble emanating through the Ella Fitzgerald Center for the Performing Arts. The venue is also home to the university’s choral and drama programs.

UMES has a reputation of eminence in the culinary arts through our Hotel and Restaurant Management program. A team of students took home first place honors in Dallas this past spring at an industry culinary challenge, besting powerhouses Morrisville State and Johnson & Wales. The community can sample their gourmet cuisine in a three-part dinner series. Individual tickets, or new this semester—gourmet series tickets—are available.

Join us at one or more of the activities surrounding the celebration of our 127th Founders’ Day on September 13, or at one of the many special events offered throughout the fall semester.

Take a look inside at the many cultural events that create the Rhythm and Hues of our campus. I’m sure you’ll find what interests you. Hope to see you soon—and often!
