The Oakland Raiders named Art Shell as the team's head coach on Saturday, February 11, 2006. The 59-year-old Shell, who coached the Silver and Black to a 54-38 record from 1989-94, becomes the 15th head coach in Raiders history and is the first person to hold the post two times.

Art's .587 career winning percentage is the highest of any coach hired this off season, and his 54 career victories are more than any other new coach. He guided The Team of the Decades to the playoffs three times, compiling a 2-3 record in postseason action and advancing to the AFC Championship Game in his first full season on the sidelines.

Art first became head coach on October 3, 1989, four games into the season, making him the first African-American head coach in the NFL. He took over a team that had struggled to a 1-3 start and led them to a 7-5 record in the final 12 games of the year. In 1990, Art's first full season as head coach, the Raiders went 12-4, capturing the AFC Western Division crown for the first time in five years and won the franchise's first playoff game since Super Bowl XVIII.

Art played in eight Pro Bowls in a 15-year career that spanned the course of three decades, the second-most by any Raider, and was an All-Pro in 1973, 74 and 77. He played in 207, the fourth-most in team history. Art played in 23 playoff games in his career, including Super Bowls XI and XV. He was credited for a near-perfect performance in Super Bowl XI against Minnesota, preventing Jim Marshall, the Vikings' star defensive end, from recording any tackles as the Raiders captured their first World Championship.

Art was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame on August 5, 1989, becoming the sixth Raider to be enshrined. After the conclusion of his illustrious playing career in 1983, Art joined the Raiders coaching staff under Tom Flores and helped coach the team to victory in Super Bowl XVIII. He was named offensive line coach in 1984 and remained in that position until his promotion to head coach in 1989.

Art coached the offensive line for Kansas City from 1995-96 and for Atlanta from 1997-2000.
